HIRA (Hazard Identification and Risk Assessment)

The initial phase of this program will be a joint risk assessment in the form of a walk through and extensive consultation with section leaders.

This will allow us to priorities the most urgent hazards from a compliance and safety perspective.

Employee health and safety has become the cornerstone in most industries. Occupational health and safety has always been regarded a compulsory service in the Namibian mining and construction industries. The need for occupational health services has become more significant with legislation emphasizing its implementation across industries beyond mining and construction.

Development of an occupational surveillance matrix for homogeneous exposure groups

The outcome of the risk assessment (RA) will guide the flow of the subsequent phases.
